Trump Assassination Attempt

<7/14> By the time this goes online in a week, the details of this event will have been clarified. I found out about it around 5:10 MDT, 55 mins after it happened. I'd spent much of the day absorbed in StoryTV's excellent segments regarding UFOs, documentation, govt-cover-up/threatenings of witnesses.

My first impression was that he was just grazed, fortunately, and that this will become a great blessing. There's huge power in martyrdom - even in the threat thereof. I've already seen strong empathy by the liberal media and Dem. voices. (2)

Everyone is calling to lower the temperature of the rhetoric. I love the courageous images of Tr. pumping his fist in defiance, fighting for freedom against the tyranny that has been encroaching on the country. My fav. photo is the one DJT, Jr. posted on soX with the American Flag draped in the background. The peacefulness and resolution on his face is majestic, notwithstanding the blood on his face and security guards swarming him. Sean Hannity pointed out that it's Divine providence that he turned his face in the nick of time, or the shot would have likely been fatal.

I was most impressed with NBC's coverage, both in relevant details and in duration. I think it was them who named the weapon as an AR15 though the midnight security press conf. only said "AR-style". They also showed a Google Earth image of the setting, showing the distance to be 145 yards. They rightfully asked why Secret Service didn't have the high ground on the building he shot from.

CBS interviewed a witness who saw the shooter on the building prior and notified an officer, who started looking when the shots rang out.

On Hannity's show, Laura Ingraham said she had spoken with Tr. that morning, and he was pumped about announcing his VP pick. NBC beat Hannity in courage to call it an "assassination attempt" <sup>early on</sup>.

When NBC was showing Tr. <sup>Daisy</sup> ③ 2/13/24 descending his AFI-sized plane, but much better-looking, over and over on a loop (~20x), I had to chuckle that they didn't do a split screen showing Biden getting back to DC. The contrast on Tr's vitality a few hours after the assassination attempt vs. Biden's ultra-serious gait and scowl countenance would have been a blatant juxtaposition.

P.S. on Assassination Attempt

I don't see the earmarks of this being a pre-planned establishment (conspiracy) op. They seemed to have been taken by surprise. There is no unified narrative (which is a hallmark of establishment conspiracies) yet. I wouldn't rule it out (that the shooter was their man). As it is, we now have the benefit of a spared martyr.
