God wants us all to take full responsibility for ourselves: thinking for ourselves, discerning for ourselves, deciding for ourselves, acting for ourselves, and accepting the consequences of our choices; ever seeking to find and fulfill our unique calling in life, all in, for good, doing our part to bring the kingdom of heaven to earth. We manifest our own destiny.

Yes, we benefit from and need one another in the body of Christ; but our first dependence should be on God, via our direct connection to God, not on any mortal. We follow God, not men. ^(Prov. 3:5, 6; 2 Ne. 28-31) (JST-Mark 9:40-48)

Medicine ^{also} is an area where this principle is very important. Yes, Doctors have advanced training, but ^{they} often tend to ignore the common sense God provides. They lack the wisdom that comes from putting God first. And it's not uncommon for them to be corrupt, giving advice

I've found that alternative remedies are almost always the best, and are MUCH less expensive, sometimes being comprised of things you can harvest in your back yard.

Wick back, because of a fringe benefit, or to line up with a political narrative. But the most difficult to discern is when they are a decent person but haven't properly scrutinized something their peers recommend.

As you prayerfully seek guidance regarding a health issue, it would be good to ^{<step>} inquire from a range of sources. I used to value Google searches, but their algorithms are ^{now} skewed to the dark side. ~~Go with your gut, intuition, which is an innate connection to God that is crucial for us to develop (discerning and following it).~~ Pres. Trump has developed this extremely well. That's why he's able to make decisions so quickly, and confidently and correctly — most of the time. We all have that potential.

Your doctor shouldn't be the only one you consult or trust. You're the one who needs to make the final decision. Be your own doctor. (see book by that name.)
