HMITF Commensurate with HFITF

by Sterling D. Allan, 228033

Feb. 28-Mar. 4, 2023

This piece is about the yin/yang balance between Heavenly Father & Mother incarnate. I realize that saying that seems like a no-brainer: of course they would be balanced. The reason it gets significant is when you apply it to people you know. People are on a spectrum of development/soul-age/intelligence/wisdom/potential/spiritual-gifts/acumen.

In this 8th-year quest I've been on to find a ♀ partner for my mission that requires a yin/yang partner, I've pursued a wide array of wonderful females, so far to no avail. I understand why females would be so repulsed by me superficially. It will take an extraordinary woman to see through all the stereotypes to the good person that I am, and the great and marvelous nature of my quest to help evoke the repentance clause (r.c.) of prophecy to avert the rock-bottom collapse to which we (civilization) are headed, and go straight to the kingdom of heaven on earth.

Recently, a new female has come on my radar. I know almost nothing about her, but there have been several things about her that spurred me to look up the AB info from a wisdom-of-the-ages perspective. What I've found, along with many synchronicities, that further bring divine witness to her suitability.

For example, on 2/22, the 7-year anniversary of my incarceration, I spent most of the day writing a couple of articles about what I was finding in AB on her, as well as some synchronicities that occurred. One of those was that I finally received a response on the Registered Mail I'd sent on 1/19 — over a month prior — to the ♀ I'd been focused on for several months (actually since 4/6), but with hearing nothing back. The letter came back marked, "unclaimed;" in other words, ignored. This timing seemed to be a baton pass permission from God. I had already essentially concluded that, but the timing synchronicity put an exclamation point on it.

From a qualifications perspective, the previous candidate checked the boxes in many very important ways. If a survey was taken of the Christian Patriot world as to who they would vote for to play this role, Kari Lake would win easily. (As for her presently being married [to someone who never shows up publicly with her — that I've seen], see pp. 143-149 N→O "Righteous Marriage Realignment.")

As I write that, a couple of things come to mind. (A) Isa. 55:9 — God's ways are higher than man's ways. (B) "God uses the unlikely to accomplish the impossible," — President Russell M. Nelson. I include myself in falling into a path of gauging "qualified" on criteria of importance to me. Who would I want to be partners with in this great & marvelous work on earth for a thousand years? But is that how God works?

David was a short-in-stature shepherd, not a soldier. Moses was slow of speech. Jesus came from Nazareth, born in a manger. According to "The Chosen" series, which I consider highly inspired, Peter was a gambling brethren traitor; Matthew, the hated tax collector, was an effeminate number nerd, especially despised by Peter for ratting on him.

In modern times, Mike Lindell was a broken crack addict; Buck Sexton had a stuttering problem; Rush Limbaugh, who preceded him, had speech issues, too, if I remember right; Glenn Beck is a recovering alcoholic; Trump is a multi-billionaire, former womanizer, who had a picture taken with Jeffrey Epstein (sr?). I certainly have many "red flag" stereotypical marks against me from being someone anyone would choose for any kind of leadership. They're glad I'm in prison.

At first, this new ♀ seemed amenable, but on 2/24, the warmth turned utterly cold. I had set forth plainly my views in writing, in fore hydrant nature, as I tend to do. She was not impressed in the least. My views are completely unorthodox, pushing the envelope—in a good way.

That evening, I was inspired by David Zero's statement, "You're at your best when you're at your low." (LFSGB on RAV TV, 6-8 pm Mountain.) So, the next day, I started writing the blog post, "Key of David: Open & Integral to All Joint Heirs." It's one of my favorite pieces.

At 3:41 am the next morning (2/25), in my journal I wrote the following Hel. 10:5 request: "IF Tā is commensurate, then AM blood [sugar level] = 181; if not (hard 'no'), [then] anything else. p.s. (3:47) change^{to} 107." I've had many experiences in recent years in which the blood sugar number (on glucometer) bespeaks divine design.

For example, on 2/22 (above-named super-significant day), when I had relayed my 2/16 editorial, "I Failed 'Be A Light' Opportunity to Defend 303 Creative Case Before SCOTUS" (ties to the 2/17 blog post, "I'm claiming Hel. 10:4-7" also relayed) to Tā. Of eight measurements I took that day, two were "303" - 8:55 am, and 19:33 - one before I relayed that, and one after. (The "before" one didn't cognitively influence that decision; I didn't notice the tie until the next day.) 2.5 hours prior to the first 303, I measured 6:30 202 - on 2/22 (yes, 222 would have been better; but I've found that God usually prefers to be more subtle).

The reason I first requested "181" is because that's the ASCII sum of "Tā". The reason I changed it to 107 is because that's a transposition of 701, the ASCII sum of the hypothetical "Tā Allan". My 3:32 am blood sugar of 72, followed by the typical "morning rise" phenomenon, would easily put me in range of either of these numbers, depending on how soon I would get my insulin.

When I wrote "commensurate" in the request, I was thinking more of the meaning "agreeable," but then, not long after (less than one hour?), I realized I should look up that word that was given to me intuitively, wondering what it might mean. As I looked it up that morning, I realized it is loaded, and it actually gave me significant confidence that Tā is intended for me and will come around — and will be my ideal match — on God's terms, not mine (Isa. 55:8,9). So, when I measured 163 at 8:57 (not 107 or 181), I didn't take it as the "hard no" of my request statement. That night, at 21:39, I measured 107, I also got a straddle on either side of that. at 25:55 106 / 2/26 15:39 108.

Also, noteworthy, on the morning of 2/25, I tabulated the 2-week average of my gucometer: Br. 215; Lu: 222; Di. 170; Bed 133 — ave 185 — quite close to 181. I mention that because as I ~~see~~ scroll backward a month (end of log: 1/27, 11/22), there are no instances of "181". I can't help but think it will show up in a special way in coming days.

Synchronistically, as I was jogging / doing stairs this afternoon, after writing the above, when I went by the guard desk to see what time the clock displayed, it was "2:22."

↑ COMMENSURATE

Now, let's look at the definitions of "commensurate" and some vicinity def.s in this context of the notion of Ta's seeming foreordained role to serve as HMITF. WOT defines "commensurate" as: "Equal in duration, extent, or size." Oxy defines it: "commensurate corresponding in size or degree, in proportion." In our context, this relates to the yin/yang balance, equally-yoked, evenly-matched, equivalency, equal, peer-ship, parallel, mate-aspects that most everyone would envision for HM & HF incarnate - if they would give this notion a thought and not ignore or disregard it - notwithstanding it being woven through the scriptures.

⑥

As I reflected on that on 2/25, I felt good about its meaning. With AB as my match-maker - the inspired wisdom of the ages - I'm not concerned that I don't know hardly anything about her. I don't even know her full name. She is pretty - and spunky, and can be very kind/friendly. She's quite young - maybe 28-35. But I don't think anyone, including me or her, would consider as a potential match, without the AB matchmaking.

I see the vicinity def.s in WOT surrounding "commensurate" relating to my recent writings about this mission.

- comforter [Importance of Holy Ghost guidance]
 - coming [again the second time, Messianic advent]
 - command(ment) [Following God's personal guidance]
 - commemorate
 - commence
 - commend
- } [The launch of this advent by I stepping forward will be seen as one of the most significant events in world history thus far - perhaps the most significant; except for (surpassed by) Jesus' atonement.]

• commendation a. favorable [Job 33:26 "<s>he will be favourable unto him"] representation in words that commend [sic - circular def. Thesaurus: "commend (SYN.) laud, praise, applaud, recommend" - relates to AB as match-maker]

↓ • commensurate [Thes.: "(SYN.) keep, celebrate, observe, honor, commend, extol, glorify, laud, praise <Note: the above two (including this one) WOT Thesaurus entries occur on p. 866 - a toll-free (gift of God) prefix in the U.S.>]

• comment <synchronistically, as I was writing this word in my journal on 2/25, 9:47 am, Bannon said 'comment' on RAV's War Room> A statement of criticism, analysis, or observation [e.g. my writings]

• commentary A series of comments [I've been delivering.]

• commingle v. To mix together, to mingle in one mass; to blend th[o]roughly. [Ⓢ]

The Ox4 set includes the above def.s. In analyzing the additional def.s & meanings there, let's dig even deeper, drawing applications on more of the details.

<3/2>

• commensal [ant.] having an association in which one benefits and the other is not harmed but does not benefit [is contrary to Ⓢ].

• commensurable (of things) [p. 115] (ASCII sum of the hypotheoretical Tā's name with my last name) of Str. '07 is filled with the entry, "Thing"; trying to this riddle] able to be measured by the same standards. [- in contrast to the Marxist "equity" which focuses on things other than merit. Excellence is not their standard; destruction of America is. The equality of "commensurate" is of the genuine, merit-based variety, not of the woken variety.]

↓ • commensurate corresponding in size or degree, in proportion. [Now, let's dig deep on this.]

o correspondent 1. a journalist who reports on a particular subject [r.c.; Tā's role with] 2. a person who writes letters [e.g. me, setting these things forth]

↓ corridor [Tā comes from]

↓ corroborate [Isa. 41:21 "bring forth your strong reasons"]

↑ correlation 1. a relationship in which one thing depends on another and vice versa correspond 1. match or agree almost exactly 2. be comparable or equivalent in character or form 3. communicate by exchanging letters [one way]

correspondence 1. a close similarity, link, or equivalent 2. letters sent or received

o proportion 2. the relationship of one thing to another in terms of size or quantity 3. the correct relationship between things

↑ prophetic

prophylactic [avert rock bottom collapse]

propinquity nearness in time or space [on brink]

(9)

propitiate win or regain someone's favor propitious giving or indicating a good chance of success; favourable [Job 33:26]

proponent [Hel. 10:4]

↓ proposal 1. a plan or suggestion [r.c./quest, my writing] 2. the action of proposing something 3. an offer of marriage [6]

propound put forward an idea or theory for consideration

I would argue that the relevance of the words in alphabetic vicinity of a couple of key words of relevance (corresponding, proportional) in the "commensurate" definition bespeaks divine affirmation of the resonance of the premise I'm propounding here.

BTW, last night, 3/2, 23:07, my blood sugar measured 107 again.

P. 1299 ("commensurate" ASCII) Strong's

While p. 1299 (ASCII sum of "commensurate") of Str.'07 doesn't seem directly relevant to that word, it is relevant to the above paragraph about "the 'commensurate' [vicinity] definition[s] bespeak[ing] divine affirmation of the resonance of the premise I'm propounding here."

• Witness (ed, es, eth, ing) [WOT "n. A person who has seen, experienced, or heard something (all of these)"]

• Wits [WOT "wit n. The ability to use words in a clever way; a sense of humor."]

(10)

• Wittingly [Ox4 "witting adj. aware of what you are doing"; relates to willing]

• Wives [Ox4 "pl. of wife" (HMIF, singular, one)]

+ / T : 116 / 84 - Blood Sugar Synchronicity

This afternoon^(3/3), I had a thought to go back through my glucometer data for instances of 116 - the ASCII value of "t". It occurred only once: 2/19 20:04 116.

That's when I was looking up the ASCII sum of T's name to weigh for the first time if she might be resonant with the HMIF role - super significant timing / relevance.

I then looked for 84 on my glucometer. That's the ASCII value of "T". It occurs 2x in the last month. The first one I came to, going back in time was 2/20 20:57 84 - about 25 hours after the 2/19 20:04 116 hit. 2/20 was the day I looked up the sum "Tā Allan" = 701 and then opened exactly (miraculously) to that page on WDT, which page is absolutely loaded with relevance, including a chiasm 7 levels deep, alternating between def.s relevant to her profession and my work, ^{The} Opening element A of the chiasm ties to the letter "T" on the next page, right after "system" at the end of p. 701. This matches with the first A "sync" set of def.s earlier in the page. That set links to the last def. on p. 925 of Ox4, "synchronicity." P. 925 ties to my full name and overlaps the first half of p. 701 WDT. Sterling silver is defined as 925 parts silver, 75 parts copper. My dad, David

Allan (my middle & last name), was born 9/25.

<3/4>

So, the first 84 ("T") on my glucometer, going back in time, is found on 2/20, the day I found this tie between the "T" entry in WDT and the "sync" set that ties to my full name, including my last name, on p. 701 WDT, the ASCII sum of "Tā Allan". I could hardly imagine a stronger link. The glucometer data provides an independent witness from God - at least that's how I view it.

I have to say I'm very grateful for the above witness. Notwithstanding all the great AB ties, I was giving up on Tā being a feasible option. She was seeming like yet another "none to answer" conclusion. Yes, she could yet end up that way, but for now, apparently God has her on the platform for my focus.
