Fool Us Penn & Teller had vase full of jelly beans; invited audience to write prediction of number J. Meanwhile, another volunteer randomly took ^{a portion of} quarters out of a bowl, then counted them. Another volunteer ^{randomly} selected four of the writer guesses, ^{one} from each of four quadrants of the auditorium. Penn talked about community mind's ability to accurately guess such things. The tally: $(1512 + 2129 + 1373 + 100) / 4 = 1278$. He handed three of the jelly beans to Teller to eat. The actual total at this point was 1275 — the same total of the quarters the other volunteer had taken out of the bowl.

[AB synchrony surpasses this.]
