This morning, Pres. Pitt asked the congregation to ponder on what "Learning by Faith" means, then told a couple of stories. Back when he was a bishop, (in contrast to our branch, where there are no lulls of time between testimonies on Fast Sunday); when 5+ minutes would pass, he had a Brother he could nod at, and he'd come up and say some words of testimony. One ~~sunday~~ time, more than 7 minutes had passed. He looked down, and that brother was asleep. Distressed, Pres. Pitt offered a prayer that he'd come up, and he did immediately stand up and come to the pulpit to say a few words. Afterward, when Pres. Pitt thanked him, he looked puzzled, asking "what for?" And Pres. Pitt couldn't help wonder if maybe he didn't ever wake up, but did that in his sleep. I found that very amusing.

The next experience he told about occurred in the temple, when a special needs child was being sealed to his parents. He had been crying very loudly. Pres. Pitt prayed with faith that he would be quiet for the ceremony. He continued crying right until the ceremony commenced, at which point he stopped, until the ceremony was done.

(9.8) The Chosen Season 4, episodes 1 & 2 premiered on KBYU. They did a good job setting up the Herodias' daughter dance that resulted in the request for John the Baptist's beheadings (and gratefully did not depict the lust aspect that they was involved). But <sup>unbelievably,</sup> neither Jesus nor his disciples shed any tears. †

The reconciliation of Peter and Matthew was deeply moving.
