To undo John Kirby's Aug. 1 statement that "we don't support Taiwan independence," which no doubt has sent shock waves around the world among our allies as well as has signalled weakness to our enemies; surely there is a way Congress could codify support for Taiwan's independence and our stance as an ally to defend them if they are attacked.

We should encourage our national legislators to support such an initiative.

Perhaps it would also be good to include support for the non-communist Republic of China [name?] in this act.
